A Girl With A Cape ~

The True Story About the Superhero in All of us

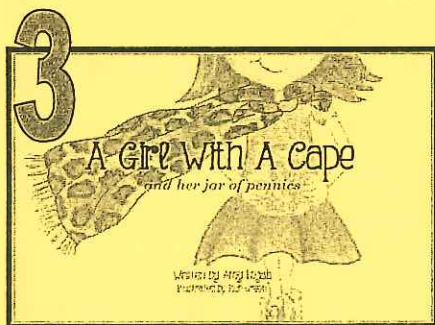

The book introduces a little girl who wears a leopard-print scarf as a superhero cape in hopes to do something big to make the world a better place. What she doesn't realize is that she's already doing just that. Every day, she is polite and kind. Her actions cause others to act the same way; to pay it forward creating a ripple-effect of kindness. However, by the end of the week, she feels defeated. She thinks her scarf doesn't work and she's too small to make a difference. Mom steps in and tells her she is the "biggest difference-maker of all" and asks her, "So now that you know that your powers are true...tell me sweet darling, what next will you do?"

A Boy With A Cape

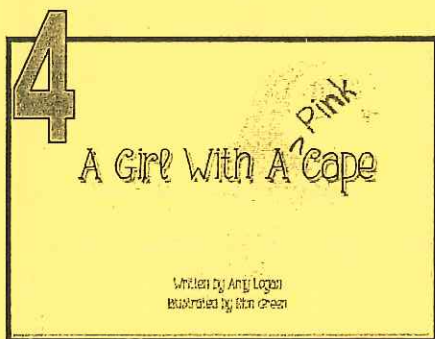

Same as above, only focuses on a boy who wants to be a superhero.

A Girl With A Cape and Her Jar of Pennies*

This is the story about the power of using what you have to give back. Now that A Girl With A Cape knows that her super power is kindness, she uses that power to spread kindness throughout her community. She has a jar of pennies that she decides she wants to sprinkle all over town so that others "find a penny, pick it up and all day long they'll have good luck." (NO CAPE INCLUDED)

A Girl With A Pink Cape*

This is the story of the power of spending time with people. A Girl With A Cape wants to go out and play with her friends. However, "mom just received a call from her friend who's a nurse; the neighbor who's sick had just gotten worse." Prompted by mom, A Girl With A Cape decides to make a treat for the neighbor and ends up spending the entire afternoon with her playing games and just enjoying themselves. It's a sweet story about how precious time is and a reminder to:

*"Always remember and never forget that what we do matters, no time for regret.
Our time here is short, and we grow up so fast...
It's when we spread kindness, our legacy lasts"*

Comes with the Pink Leopard-Print Scarf as seen in book.

*This book is a tribute to the author's sister who passed away in 2014 because of breast cancer. A portion of the profits from each of this book sold goes to several local non-profit organizations who give back to people in our own communities.
